up to this time only one side of the story has been told, except what has been drawn from the plaintiff's witnesses in the way of admissions under Mr. Smith's sharp and sometimes biting cross-examination.

I Talk With Dawson.

Ir. Lucas yesterday testified as to an eged conversation between himself and.

Dawson on August 17, 1903, in which said the latter importuned the witness try to get Busby to sell out to Lucas 50 cents on the dollar. He testified at Dawson said that he had Busby tied to Dawson said that he had Busby tied

r. Busby was also questioned as to kind of ink and pen usually employed him in writing, and he said it was custom to use a fountain pen, which Lucas usually filled for him. These titons were asked in pursuance of the ery theory suggested by the plain-

Objection Made.

Objection Made.

Counsel for the defense strongly objected when Mr. Royall asked witness when Dawson first informed him that he was in charge of the business. The court held the question to be proper, whereupon witness replied that Dawson first said he was in charge June 22.

Counsel for plaintiff handed witness a pencil-written paper, which witness said was a form of dun for the expediting of small collections, which Dawson, at his (Lucas's) request, had drawn up. The "form" was dated June 20, and advised the recipient that Dawson, as attorney for Busby, had been entrusted with a claim for collection, it was signed Dawson, and the recipient that Dawson, as attorney for Busby, had been entrusted with a claim for collection, it was signed Dawson, and thought Dawson, and thought Dawson, and the properties to whome the properties to whome the properties of the proper

Son.

According to witness, he thought Dawson drafted the letter as a matter of accommodation, simply to assist the collection of slow accounts. Dawson had not hesitated to scratch it off. The transaction apparently all took place in a few minutes.

RHEUMATISM DREAD OF WINTER

The cold, misty rains, northerly winds and damp, cloudy days of winter arouse the old pains and aches and bring out all the misery of Rheumatism. Comparison Made.

Quite an interesting diversion was the passing of the Dawson-written form around among the jurors, who were asked to compure Dawson's writing of the name of J. H. Husby with the signature of Busby to a note, which was also passed around. This was designed to show the resemblance between the two signatures of the name of Busby, and suggested the forgery theory, to which allusion has been made elsewhere.

nounced that his direct evidence was all in.

After the reading of some depositions by counsel for the defendants from Northern merchants, regarding the conduct of Dawson when he went North to look after Busby's affairs, an adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock to-day, when it is likely that Mr. Dawson will be put on as the first witness for the defendants.

Mr. Dawson's testimony will be eagerly awaited, as he is one of the principals and foremost figures in the case.
